THE WALTER MOKE ARTS AGENCY would like to introduce you to

SUN.ERGOS, A COMPANY OF THEATRE AND DANCE

Mandate: to celebrate the differences among cultures and to recognize their similarities, and to present them with the highest quality of theatre and dance skills, combined with story-telling, musical, visual, sculptural and textural arts.

"Working Together" - Moving the Human Spirit! with cultures from around our world

Description of the Artists' Work: Sun.Ergos, a registered, non-profit, Actors' Equity Cooperative, is Alberta's foremost international touring company of theatre and dance. Its two artists provide "unique, irreplaceable, completing imaginations" and multi-cultural programming for festivals, television, communities, performing arts series, college-university series and schools. Having toured 17 different countries since 1977, actor, Robert Greenwood and Dana Luebke, dancer, have created over 40 productions of classical, folkloric and original stories, dances and legends, helping to raise awareness of the performing arts with humour and professional skills. Combining theatre and dance, their work sparkles with energetic characterizations, simple and beautiful production elements, compelling movement and an infectious delight in life.

This is a company of which THE SCOTSMAN of Edinburgh has said, "they perform with an intense conviction, a quiet but total authority and conjure up...the things that matter most in people's lives." And of which the SALZBURGER NACHRICHTEN in Austria has written, "...They don't want to be known as preservers of ancient traditions. They interpret the material according to their own imagination...they achieve their own audacious and witty interpretation."

Residency Activities: Usually, Bob and Dana offer a 5-day residency in any given area, college, school or community. Both working simultaneously, they can teach 47-hours of professional classes in Acting, Directing, Voice-Speech, Design, Visual Arts, Choreography, Modern, Folk, Ballet and Contemporary Dance in the 5-day period.

Bob was trained at Dartmouth College and the Yale University School of Drama and chaired two Acting and Acting-Directing Programs at the University of Oklahoma and the University of Calgary. Dana danced with The Minnesota Dance Theatre, Sara Sugihara and the Family, and the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and was trained in Minneapolis, New York City, Paris, Spoleto, London and Banff.

CATEGORY: Modern/Experimental/Theatre and Dance

ORGANIZATION/ARTIST AND TOURING ACTIVITIES: Sun.Ergos, A Company of Theatre and Dance, is a professional theatre and dance company, combining the individual talents of Robert Greenwood and Dana Luebke in a wide variety and repertoire of colourful and controversial performance pieces for adults and young people. Created with the idea that theatre and dance benefit from collaboration with all other art forms and traditions, Sun.Ergos employs mime, singing, poetry, music, crafts, sculpture, folk arts and the visual arts in their performances. Greenwood, a graduate of the Yale School of Drama, with over forty years experience in theatre and dance, has received the Marcus Heiman Award for Theatre Arts, was named Actor of the Year by THE ALBERTAN, was selected as a semi-finalist in the duMaurier Search for Stars, and has been recognized by the World Cultural Council for his contributions in the arts to mankind. Dana Luebke danced with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, the Minnesota Dance Theatre; studied in France, Italy and New York; worked with Gisela Reber, Loyce Houlton, Nina Wiener, Murray Louis and Glen Tetley, and is a recipient of two Gulbenkian Fellowships for choreography and dance. The company has met with critical acclaim on tours in Scotland, England, Wales, Belgium, Canada, Israel and the United States, and at international festivals in Edinburgh, Swansea, Edmonton, Montreal, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Bratislava, Pila, Nitra, Sibenik, Hong Kong and Singapore. Robert Greenwood and Dana Luebke also provide workshops and master classes in acting, choreography, dance and related theatre skills.

Catégorie: Théâtre et danse moderne/expérimental

L'organization/Artiste et activités en tournée: Sun.Ergos, A Company of Theatre and Dance, est un troupe de théâtre et danse qui associe les talents de Robert Greenwood et Dana Luebke dans un grand nombre de numéros divers, hauts en couleurs et sujets à controverse, pour adultes et jeunes. Issue de la croyance que le théâtre et la danse peuvent bénéficier tous d'autres formes et traditions artistiques, la compagnie Sun.Ergos recourt au mime, au chant, à la poésie, à la musique, à l'artisanat, à la sculpture, aux arts folkloriques et aux arts visuels. Diplômé du Yale School of Drama, M. Greenwood compte plus de quarante années d'expérience dans le domaine de la danse et du théâtre. Lauréat du Marcus Heiman Award for Theatre Arts, choisi acteur de l'année par THE ALBERTAN, il était un des semi-finalistes du DuMaurier Search For Stars, et il était reconnu par le Conseil Culturel Mondial pour ses contributions artistiques à l'humanité. M. Luebke a dansé avec le Royal Winnipeg Ballet et le Minnesota Dance Theatre. Il a étudié en France, en Italie et à New York, travaillé avec Gisela Reber, Loyce Houlton, Nina Wiener, Murray Louis et Glen Tetley, et obtenu deux Gulbenkian Fellowship pour chorégraphie et danse. La compagnie a fait l'objet des critiques élogieuses dans ses tournées en Écosse, Angleterre, Pays de Galles et Belgique, au Canada, au Israël et aux ÉTATS-UNIS, ainsi qu'aux festivals internationaux d'Édimbourg, de Swansea, d'Edmonton, de Montréal, de Vancouver, de Winnipeg, de Bratislava, de Pila, de Nitra, de Sibénik, d'Hong Kong et de Singapour. Robert Greenwood et Dana Luebke animent aussi des ateliers et des classes d'interprétation en théâtre, chorégraphie, danse et autres techniques théâtrales.

MANDATE

SUN.ERGOS, A COMPANY OF THEATRE AND DANCE

“TO CELEBRATE THE DIFFERENCES AMONG CULTURES AND TO RECOGNIZE PEOPLES’ SIMILARITIES”

Provided for Internal School Use Only Copyright 2000 Sun.Ergos

genre: (zhan'ra) n. [Fr. <L. genus, a kind] 1. a kind or type 2. type, class, variety 3. a category of art distinguished by a definite style, form or content 4. a genus, sort or style; specif. a style of painting or other art, illustrative of common life, as distinguished from the historial, the romantic, or the idealizing style; frequently used attributively, as genre pictures 5. painting in which subjects from everyday life are treated realistically; pictures of 'real life' genre:

Theatre and dance, as performed and created by Sun.Ergos, has always been a celebration of the differences in cultures and the recognition of their similarities and always a witnessing of their humanity; each production has its own appropriate style, colours, textures, sounds, visual patterns, emotions, rhythms and meanings, based on the specific traditions, culture and period of the legends, myths, stories, dances, ideas or original pieces presented.

The 'real life' of theatre and dance, as presented by Sun.Ergos, depends upon years of research and life experience, months of creative effort, weeks of rehearsal and years of performing skills; each production has its own environment and atmosphere to celebrate the particular culture or point of view and relate it to our own world by providing lessons and values that enhance and shine a light on our own society.

Sometimes, by providing extraordinary images from other cultures, we see our own everyday life more clearly; sometimes a talking animal character or the liquid form of a dancer provides more of an insight into our own life by giving us the aesthetic distance to see without judgement, to hear without prejudice, to feel without fear, to smile with recognition at our own mistakes and foibles, to realize a truth about ourselves.

And, so, sun.ergos is theatre and dance which is distinguished by its own unique, definite style, form and content which reflects, refracts our mutual experience of being human and alive.

Sun.Ergos was once described by a critic as telling two stories at once, one verbally and one physically; this comes from the Blackfoot tradition of telling two stories simultaneously, one verbally and one in sign-language to hone the listening and observational skills and retention of the audience.

social: (so' chal) adj. [<L. socius, companion] 1. of or having to do with human beings in their living together 2. living in an organized group or similar close aggregate 3. of or for companionship context: (kon'tekst) n. [<L. com- together + texere, a weave] 1. the parts just before and after a word or passage that determine its meaning 2. the circumstances in which a particular event occurs; a situation [Middle English, from Latin contextus, coherence, a sequence of words, for the past participle of contexere, to join together, weave : com- together + texere, to join, weave, plait social context:

Sun.Ergos has always sought to be involved in the fabric of societal activities, needs and visions for a better, higher quality of life for everyone.

For that reason, the company has been inspired by the roots of theatre and dance in folk-loric materials, stories, ideas and dances; to observe carefully the details, differences and shared or common traits among all cultures in order to celebrate the solutions we all find to living, clothing ourselves, feeding ourselves, housing ourselves and finding meaning in our being alive.

As a result, the company works diligently to create productions that have a ring of authenticity about them, whether in theatre or dance or story-telling or visual presentation. Trying always to find the shared emotions, shared ideas, shared solutions, in order that the audience may see and celebrate their common humanity with all cultures, the company has created some 47 socially-aware productions.

Perhaps one of the best examples of this occurred during the Balkan Wars (1991-1995) in Croatia when Sun.Ergos did a world premiere of its production of ZARIWALLAS' THREADS. Taking stories from the Panchatantra (the Five Books of Wisdom) from India, Sun.Ergos found stories that were equivalent to tales and legends in Croatian culture. The Croatian audience could easily identify the stories - even when they did not always understand the language - and realize that their culture was not the only one to discover the particular wisdoms in the stories. That, indeed, they were not isolated, but were, in fact, part of the whole tapestry of human experience.

Sun.Ergos' social context is very simple: "celebrate the differences and recognize the similarities", the goal of which is to help rid the world of prejudice.

history: (his'te re, tre) n., pl -ries [< Gr. histor>, learned] 1. Abbr. hist. a narrative account of events; a story; chronicle 2. a chronological record of events, as in the development of a people, country, or institution 3. the branch of knowledge that records and analyzes past event 4. the events forming the subject matter of history 5. an interesting past [Latin historia, from Greek inquiry, observation, from histor, learned man]

pre-PERFORMANCE ACTIVITIES - 1

SOME IDEAS AND SUGGESTED QUESTIONS

1. Talk to your students about theatre. What does it mean to them? How many have seen live performances before? What are their expectations of live performances? of being an audience? How do we behave when we go to the theatre? What is acting? What is dance? How does live performance differ from television? from film?
2. Tell them stories. Have them tell each other stories. What legends and myths do they know? How many students come from other countries? How do the stories of their countries differ from those told in North America? How are they the same? Do they know any native stories? Have they ever acted out being an animal? a bird? another person?
3. Have they ever made a mask? Have they ever seen native masks? masks from other countries? How are they used? When do people use them?
4. How do people dance in other countries? in North America? When do they dance? Why do they dance? What kinds of dance are there in the World? What kinds of games do they play? What sports are important to other countries? to North America? Show them films from other countries, from the National Film Board.
5. What does the music of other countries sound like? What kinds of instruments do they use? What kinds of songs do they sing? What do they sing about? Listen to records, cassette tapes, CDs from other countries.
6. How do people dress in other countries? What kinds of fabrics do other countries use for clothing? What do their homes look like? How do they talk? What are their families like? Do they have pets? What kinds? Show them film strips, slides.
7. What colours are important to different peoples? What colours do parents wrap their children in when they are born? What colours do people get married in? What colours do people use when they die? How do people decorate themselves? What do the decorations mean? Show them pictures from National Geographic Magazine.
8. What kind of landscapes do other peoples live in around the World? How does it affect how they think? how they work? how they play? how they make music? how they dance? What is it like to live in a forest? in a desert? in mountains? on a prairie?
9. How do people work together to make life work for all the people in the place where they are? How can they get along with people they don't know well? What makes people laugh? cry? get angry? be afraid? What makes people happy? contented? feel good about themselves?

10. How would you respect a guest in your house from another country? How do you think you would show respect for your hosts if you were a guest in another country? If you couldn't learn all the language, what phrases would you learn to help you live in the country for a while?

11. What foods would you eat if you were in another country? What foods would you offer someone from another country?

12. What if you could chose to draw and paint like someone from another country? What if you had to make your clothing like someone from another country? What if you had to wear your hair in the style of someone from another country? Would you discover why people make the choices of style they make from studying these differences?

N.B.: Some of these questions and ideas may seem a bit outside everyday experiences at first glance. However, Sun.Ergos, A Company of Theatre and Dance, travels around the world. We put on stage those experiences, ideas, feelings, colours, textures, sounds, dances and stories that we have found on those tours and by empathizing with these kinds of questions and ideas has given us a very deep appreciation of the universal threads that run through all of our human cultures.

EXPECTATIONS FOR AUDIENCE BEHAVIOUR IN SCHOOLS

INFORMATION SHEET - Pearl Rain, Deep Thunder

1

Celebrating the differences! Recognizing the similarities!

"Working Together" - Moving the Human Spirit!

TITLE OF SHOW:

PEARL RAIN, DEEP THUNDER

LENGTH OF SHOW:

50-minutes, plus 10-minute Question Period

TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS:

[see enclosed tech sheet]

THEME [describe in one sentence]: The Earth's need for rain and human beings need for sufficiency, compassion and experiences which bring about transformations in our lives and the shared understandings and wisdom which are part of our imaginations' legacy from one culture to another.

CONTENT [brief description of pieces in show]: PEARL RAIN, DEEP THUNDER is a combination of two Chinese stories, one by Julie Lawson, THE DRAGON'S PEARL and the other by Laurence Yep, THE JUNIOR THUNDER LORD. The first is a modern retelling of myths about a dragon from the Min River and the second is a translation of a story from the Ming Dynasty. Both deal with China's need for rain in order to feed its peoples and how rain effects their daily lives.

GOAL [what is the purpose of this show]: To witness the richness of human emotion and to present it to the audiences in ways that make them have a greater understanding of Chinese cultures, myths and stories.

POINT OF VIEW OF ARTISTS [brief description]: That we all are human and need to be able to express our emotions clearly and without guilt, knowing that if we all indeed can and do have similar emotions, we can all afford to be more compassionate with each other by understanding each others needs and cultures.

CLASSIFICATION [i.e.: ADULT, FESTIVAL, FAMILY, YOUNG AUDIENCE]: Festival, Adult and Family, 10-years and up.

PRESENTATION [skills used to present show]: Theatre skills, modern, classical Chinese and contemporary forms of dance, striking costumes, detailed and authentic masks, vocal and physical skills all combine to create a world within Chinese screens and platform-tables which become mountains, fields, boats and the sky itself

TARGET AUDIENCE [i.e.: Seniors, multi-cultural groups, etc.]: Festival, Adult and Family, 6-years and up. Visual artists have often found this an inspiring and imaginative take-off for their own creativity.

CAST [see Bios]: Robert Greenwood (actor) and [Mr.] Dana Luebke (dancer-actor)

vocabulary for pearl rain, deep thunder - 1

DRAGON

A mythical beast, created from the wings of birds, the scales of fish, the body of a snake and the horns of a deer. In China, a dragon was always connected with water, bringing thunderstorms, clouds and rain. It was always a mixture of all kinds of animals and could change itself into other animals and creatures. It was an honor to be connect with a dragon in any way.

Tasks:

Design a dragon banner.

Write a weather report in the character of a dragon.

As a Chinese child, write a poem to a dragon.

TOIL

To work hard and continuously.

Tasks:

Mime an action from your favorite hobby. Show your enjoyment.

Mime the same action, showing it as hard, continuous work.

DROUGHT

A period of time when no rain falls; a lack of moisture.

Task:

Pick two plants. Put one in water. Leave the other without water. After two days, describe in writing how the first plant feels and how the second plant feels.

GRASS

Various green plants, usually non-flowering, with blade-like leaves, growing densely in fields, lawns.

Task:

Grow grass on a potato head. Cut it. What happens in the next week?

Keep a Science Journal.

Find out how you get a grass stain out of clothing.

list continues...

vocabulary for pearl rain, deep thunder - 2

PEARL

A precious gem found in oysters.

Tasks:

Find other stories about oysters.

Write your own story about a pearl.

Do you know anyone who owns pearls? Can you borrow them for a show-and-tell?

Make up a play with a friend or friends using the pearls you have borrowed.

TRANSFORMATION

To change from one character to another; from one object to another.

Tasks:

Become Xiao Sheng as a young boy. Mime an action he might be enjoying. At the teacher's signal, freeze. Gradually, change into a dragon - legs, body, back, head, hands, neck. Move around the room as a dragon. What other characters or objects can you become?

RELATED SUGGESTIONS:

Look at Chinese paintings. Paint a picture of Xiao Sheng's mother on the riverbank with the dragonfly and the orange carp. Can you make your picture look like the Chinese paintings.

Listen to water in a river or stream - or even from a tap. Can you hear the dragon singing?

Do you know how to make tea without a tea-bag?

How many countries use rice in their diets and why?

SUGGESTED LEARNING ACTIVITIES

1. Read stories from other countries, from our own native peoples.
2. Make masks of characters you find in the stories you have read.
3. Make up a dance to music from another country, from poetry, from classical music.
4. Make musical instruments out of found objects and try to make them sound like instruments from other countries.
5. Make up a song and put it to music from another country or to a melody you already know.
6. Find clothes or fabrics from home that are very colourful and try to wear them as if they were clothes from another country.
7. Paint pictures of the stories, characters, songs, environments and clothes you have made up based on ideas from other cultures.
8. Pretend to be a guest in someone else's home who does not speak the same language you do. How would you communicate with them?
9. Bring a lunch to school made from recipes from another country or culture and share it with a friend who has never eaten such food before.
10. Write a story or a poem about an imaginary person from another country. Try to image what it would be like to be that person, to feel like that person, to think like that person.
11. Learn to say please and thank you, hello and good-bye, and the phrase 'what is this called?' in other languages than French or English.
12. Imagine what it would be like to be in someone else's shoes for a day. What would they think? What would they feel?

FOLLOW-UP SUGGESTIONS

After each performance, Bob and Dana always try to have a question period of approximately ten-minutes during which students may ask them about the performance they have just seen and about some of the countries to which they have travelled.

We would also encourage a discussion to take place in the classroom as soon after the performance as possible. What did the students think and feel about the stories and dances? of the characters? What skills did they notice? What movements, sounds and colours do they remember? What emotions did they witness? What ideas or thoughts did they get from the stories and dances? What did the stories and dances mean? What was new or unusual to them? Have them draw a picture or write a story of what they saw in the performance.

REACTIONS - FEED-BACK

We encourage the students to write letters and send drawings to us. We also need your feedback. We do write back to students. It takes a while, but we will respond.

Evaluation Forms are handed out prior to the performance and a Reply Envelope is left with the your Secretary for return to our administrative office.

PEN-PAL CLUBS

SUN.ERGOS has the addresses of teachers overseas in countries in which they have toured who would like pen-pals for their students. Please use the informational sheets passed out at the time of the performance to carry-out such letter-writing. A similar program may be carried out through the High Commissioner for Refugees at the United Nations, the address for whom is also available in the performance hand-outs.

Statement of Philosophy for the experience of Theatre/Dance

Children take in information and learn through all six senses: aural, visual, tactile (touch and taste), olfactory and kinesthetic. Theatre and dance develop all of the senses, but, most predominately, the kinesthetic sense, the language of movement. Children need the opportunity to become literate in movement as a language. It is one of the most direct means to understand ourselves and the world in which we live. By experiencing knowledge directly through movement, involves the body, the mind, the emotions, the voice, the imagination and the instincts in order that we may open avenues of awareness which will help to make us more total human beings.

This statement is based on the following philosophical ideas:

- Theatre and dance, in their simplest forms, are expressive movement, a language that everyone can understand. They can be a child's greatest resource which can be used as teaching tools to open minds and imaginations.
- Through theatre and dance, students learn to use the creative process as a means of problem-solving and a way of life.
- Through theatre and dance, students gain a higher levels of self-esteem, as they experience their own uniqueness. They can gain increased ability to concentrate and develop a personal commitment to learning.
- Theatre and dance provide alternative` ways to learn and achieve basic educational objectives such as concentrating, listening, following directions, remembering, planning, visualizing, conceptualizing and sequencing.
- Theatre and dance are forms of aesthetic education, where parallels are drawn between them and the other forms of art, and where students come to value the richness of the arts in their lives.
- Theatre and dance encourage students students to challenge expectations, break stereotypes, change the ways in which they apprehend the world.
- Theatre and dance develop an understanding and appreciation of the imagination, body, mind, emotions and voice, which can translate into a lifelong commitment to fitness and health. Dance can be enjoyed and appreciated by all ages, both genders, non-challenged and challenged alike.
- Theatre and dance can provide people with an expanded range of choices about the environment in which they live, the lifestyle they develop, and the way they spend their leisure time.
- Theatre and dance have been a part of the life of every culture throughout the span of human existence. They develop distinctive ways of seeing, thinking, inventing and communicating ideas and feelings.
- Theatre and dance are a universal experience that can foster an appreciation of cultural diversity. Theatre and dance are a record of human experience and provides distinctive ways of understanding society, history and nature.

Comments for International Dance Day, April 29, 2000 (provided by the Department of Canadian Heritage)

ALICIA ALONSO - CUBA

"As we start the new millennium, the art of dance is experiencing a time of great splendor and, perhaps, the highest level of development of its long history. The rich inheritance of the past unites with creativity and entertainment. There is also an inexhaustible source of dance in the social dances and folklore of people in many diverse cultures. There is no art form foreign to dance.

"However, in many respects dance has not been given the place it deserves among the significant cultural events of the times. I believe that dancers, choreographers, professors, critics and other professionals in this field must strive for the universal recognition that dance deserves. To accomplish this goal the bridges of mutual respect and understanding among the various performing styles must be strengthened.

"Respect for tradition, conservation and development of historical dance – of both the 19th and 20th centuries – should complement and support the new and experimental styles. The old and new are two parts of the same creative history, aesthetics, and philosophy in order to create an integrated balance between the art of performance and the intellectual ideas of its creators. In the new century, dance must strengthen its presence in the cultural life of the community, establish academic credentials on the university level, and obtain greater recognition on the institutional and state levels.

"To accomplish this, we must have talent, dedication and, above all, a great love for our art.

"On an occasion as special as this one, I want to wish great success to the dance world in completing these urgent tasks. May our dreams be a beautiful reality in the 21st century."

JIRI KYLIAN - NETHERLANDS

"Dance is a garden, maybe not big, but infinitely high and endlessly deep. There is place for everyone. Set yourself rules in order to break them, in order to find new feelings, new realities, new dimensions."

CYRIELLE - FRANCE

What movements, say,
They do not know themselves,
They gather, they assemble,
Enrich themselves, join together,
Follow each other, draw their own shapes,
Develop and fly away.
Some repeat themselves to survive.
They rest, they wander,
And by uniting, they design a dance.

SUGGESTED STUDENT ACTIVITIES FOR DANCE

The activities listed below cover a range of ideas and topics, from physical, emotional activities to math problems. They are suggestions based on the performance(s), workshops(s) and master classes Sun.Ergos offers. Bibliographic materials are available to supplement these ideas. Please adapt any of these activities to your classes' abilities and interests.

PHYSICAL/EMOTIONAL ACTIVITIES

Dance is an expression of emotions through movement.

ACTIVITIES 1 and 2 are exercises in showing emotion through movement.

ACTIVITY 1: Conduct a brainstorming session to find words that describe feelings and emotions. Cover as wide a range as possible. Have the students walk quietly around the rooms, and when a leader calls out one of the words that has been discovered from the list of feelings and emotions list, the students stop their movement and display that emotion. This may or may not be accompanied by music, sounds, rhythmic patterns. However, this choice should be such that it allows for a range of emotional interpretation.

ACTIVITY 2: Ask your students to walk along a straight line or path from one corner of an open space to the other. Using the list of emotional words that you discovered by doing Activity #1, ask the students to show one emotion all the way across the space. Challenge them to use their bodies and faces to make it clear what they are feeling. A variation on this is to secretly assign a particular emotion to each student, and ask the other students guess how each student is feeling as he or she moves across the space.

Dancers on stage must be energized, exciting, electrifying and "in character" even when they are standing still.

ACTIVITIES 3 and 4 are exercises to experience and teach 'stillness' for the stage.

ACTIVITY 3: Using commands, such as 'run', 'freeze', 'change', ask the students to move quickly around the space in any direction, and 'freeze' as quickly as possible on your command. Once they have frozen, ask them to 'change' - at which time the students may change, very suddenly or very slowly, something or anything about their position. They may chose to change their direction, level, focus, positon of body parts - anything - but they must maintain the energy with which they stopped. For further experience with this, use the 'change' command several times, considerably varying the time intervals between the commands.

ACTIVITY 4: Ask your students to imagine begin in a museum. Ask all of them, except one, to become statues. The student who is not acting as a statue is the observer, looking at all the statues, one at a time, and deciding out loud what he or she thinks each statue is. The statues, meanwhile, try to slowly change their shpae without the observer seeing them do it. If a statue is 'caught' moving by the observer, he or she must them become the observer. You may wish to have several observers or simply replace one at a time. There is no 'end' to the game, so the students may want to invent an ending or simply put a time-limit on the activity.

Dancers must learn long sequences of movements, remember them and execute them accurately.

ACTIVITY 5 challenges you to see how effective and accurate your physical memory is.

ACTIVITY 5: Create a large circle in a space where there is plenty of room for each person to move freely. Starting with one person inventing one movement, the person next to them repeats the first movement and adds one which they invent. Continue this activity around the circle, each person repeating the movements that came before them and adding their own. Ask the final person, who should know all of the movements to teach the entire sequence to the rest of the group in order for the entire circle to perform the dance together. If the group is too large and it becomes impossible to remember the entire sequence of movements, divide them into smaller circles and have each group perform their dance for the others.

Dancers and choreographers draw inspiration from everything around them.

ACTIVITY 6 emphasises the possible use of nature, animals for inspiration.

ACTIVITY 6: Hold another brainstorming session and think of as many animals, birds, natural elements as possible. Ask the students to make up a sequence of four or eight simple movements and make sure everyone knows the sequence.

The movements should be as simple as bending, stretching, twisting, reaching, etc. Ask the student to repeat the sequence as if they were one of the animals or bird or natural element on the list. How would a camel look doing this sequence? A kangaroo? A hummingbird? A caterpillar? A large leaf?

Learning physical trust with one another in a performing arts company is absolutely necessary.

ACTIVITY 7 and 8 are ways to develop this sense of trust by engaging in active/passive role playing.

ACTIVITY 7: Ask students to lead each other around an open space with the person being lead closing his or her eyes and trying to relax. Or, have 'partner A' take complete responsibility for every movement made by 'partner B' by physically moving each body part. Partner B should be as relaxed and responsive as possible. Remember, dance is a non-verbal art form.

ACTIVITY 8: Ask groups of students to stand silently in a circle approximately 6-8 feet in diameter without holding hands, but touching shoulders. Ask one student to stand in the middle of the circle. The members of the outside circle reach their hands toward the centre of the circle, palm open to receive the weight of the student in the centre.
